

Website credits

This website has been developed by James Duffy

The design, XHTML development, content and copywriting for this Web site have been provided by James Duffy.

HTML standards

The website is coded in HTML5, today's standard, and is designed to work with modern browsers. This ensures cleaner code and greater portability across a wide range of devices.

Website content

All of the copy on the positioning pages is written by Damien Tudor

Technical development

The technical development for this website's content management system was undertaken by James Duffy, which also provides the website hosting.